

Overview

This whitepaper examines Ignatius Press and how My Catholic Faith Delivered™ (MCFD) tailored a technology solution that uniquely met its needs. This document will examine the solutions and results. In addition, it will examine challenges that have presented themselves within the Catholic Church and a potential approach to solving them.

Challenge | Ignatius Press

Ignatius Press has two religious education series. One, Faith and Life, has been popular in its current version for children grades 1-8. Father Joseph Fessio, the Founder and Editor of Ignatius Press, realized that more and more young people were turning to online content for their education. Ignatius Press was thinking of putting this series online – the simple way would be through a PDF, but that didn't allow for parents and teachers to see how the students are progressing. So, having an interactive formal presentation of Catholic Education, and one that has assessing ability is a huge benefit when you are trying to reach the young and get our catechism out there for them to benefit.

Faith and Life Series

Ignatius Press's acclaimed series is brought to life with system graded assessments, Steve Ray videos, video games, and more. For Grades 1 - 8.

Solution | Father Joseph Fessio, Editor and Chief

"MCFD was a perfect match because they were able to take our print content and make it not only available in a digital format, but also add all sorts of interactive features. In particular, what I think that it does for us and for the Church in the catechetical area, is that all the students only get one hour a week in personal contact with a teacher. So, if you can have an online presentation of the Catholic faith that these students are expected to review, then you can really use that one hour in a very fruitful and effective way. So I think it's a tremendous way especially of helping people catechize and form those young people who are not going to be in Catholic institutions."
